

"Fine" is the most expensive word in your business

When you tell yourself the business is fine, you remove every reason to change it. "Fine" is how owners settle for less than they wanted.

REMEMBER

- ◆ "Fine" is not an answer. It is a way of not answering.
- ◆ If you have talked yourself out of wanting more, nothing will push you toward it.
- ◆ Honesty about what is not working is the first act of leadership.

YOUR TURN

Where I say "it's fine" about my business:

What I actually want in each of those places:

What staying "fine" for another year would cost me:

The one area I will stop calling fine:

The first honest step I will take there:

THIS WEEK

Catch yourself each time you say "it's fine" about the business. Write down what is true instead.
