

Show what is at stake

People act when they can see what they gain and what it costs to stay where they are. Say both, plainly and honestly.

REMEMBER

- ◆ If nothing is at stake, there is no reason to decide today.
- ◆ Describe the good outcome in real, everyday detail.
- ◆ Name the cost of doing nothing honestly. This is not about fear. It is about telling the truth.

YOUR TURN

What my customer's life or business looks like after working with me:

What it costs them to stay where they are (time, money, peace of mind):

Where I describe my service but never say what is at stake:

Two sentences I can use, one for each side:

THIS WEEK

Add one sentence about the gain and one about the cost of waiting to the offer you talk about most.
