

Speak all four languages

People take in a message in different ways. Give them a picture, a story, the proof and the feeling, and far more of them will hear you.

REMEMBER

- ◆ Most of us lean on one language. Our audience is listening in all four.
- ◆ Proof gives your message a foundation. Warmth without substance does not last.
- ◆ Feeling is what moves people to act.

YOUR TURN

The language I use most (picture, story, proof or feeling):

The picture: what the result looks like:

The story: one real example:

The proof: numbers, results, credentials:

The feeling: what it means to the person:

THIS WEEK

Take one offer description and add whichever of the four is missing.

Inspired by Richard Greene, "The 7 Secrets of the Greatest Speakers in History" (TEDx).