

Ask for the cash first

Cash is the lifeblood of a small business. When customers pay before you deliver, their commitment funds the work and proves the demand.

REMEMBER

- ◆ Being paid up front is not pushy. It is how a small business stays healthy.
- ◆ A deposit or pre-sale is proof that people want what you are building.
- ◆ Money received in advance comes with a promise. Deliver what you said, when you said.

YOUR TURN

Where I currently do the work first and get paid later:

What that delay costs me (cash flow, stress, chasing invoices):

One offer where I could ask for payment or a deposit up front:

Something new I could pre-sell before I build it:

The words I will use to ask:

THIS WEEK

Choose one offer and change its terms so payment, or a deposit, comes before the work begins.

Inspired by John Mullins, "6 Tips on Being a Successful Entrepreneur" (TED).