

Trouble starts long before the symptoms show

Business problems build quietly for a long time before they hurt. Regular check-ups catch what a crisis would otherwise reveal.

REMEMBER

- ◆ By the time it hurts, it has usually been building for months or years.
- ◆ Small, steady check-ups cost far less than one emergency.
- ◆ Look hardest at the areas that feel fine. That is where surprises hide.

YOUR TURN

A past problem that surprised me. Looking back, what were the early signs?

Early warning signs I will watch in my money (cash on hand, late payments, shrinking margins, one client too large):

Areas I have been avoiding because I am afraid of what I will find:

My check-up rhythm: what I review weekly, monthly and quarterly:

THIS WEEK

Put a 30-minute money check-up on your calendar, repeating every month. Do the first one this week.
