

Your A, B and C customers

Focus on your A's. It is the only way C's become B's and B's become A's. You will spend more time on your C's than you ever will on an A.

REMEMBER

- ◆ Know who your A customers are by name.
- ◆ Build the business around your A's. That standard draws the others upward.
- ◆ Sorting is about fit with the work, never about someone's worth as a person.

YOUR TURN

An A customer, in three or four traits (fit, commitment, results, ease of working together):

My A's:

My B's:

My C's:

Where my time went last month, by group:

One thing I will do to make the experience better for my A's:

THIS WEEK

Sort your list. Then do one thing that makes the experience better for your A's.
