

Measure what the spreadsheet misses

Some of the most valuable things in your business never appear in the monthly numbers: trust, loyalty, culture and reputation. Watch them too, and give them time.

REMEMBER

- ◆ What is easy to count is not always what matters most.
- ◆ Investments in people and relationships can take years to show in the figures.
- ◆ Do not cut what builds long-term value to make one month look better.

YOUR TURN

The numbers I look at now:

What matters in my business that those numbers do not show (loyalty, referrals, trust, team morale):

A simple way to keep track of each:

A long-term investment I am tempted to cut for short-term relief:

How long I will give it before I judge it:

THIS WEEK

Add two measures to your monthly review that are not about money, such as repeat clients and referrals received.

Inspired by Alex Edmans, "The Social Responsibility of Business" (TEDx).