

Take care of your people and the numbers follow

Treating your people well is not a cost that takes from the business. It is one of the surest ways to strengthen it.

REMEMBER

- ◆ People who are trusted and well treated stay longer and do better work.
- ◆ Replacing a good person costs far more than keeping one.
- ◆ Care shows in pay and in everyday things: trust, pride in the work, belonging.

YOUR TURN

The people who help my business run (staff, contractors, assistants):

How well I am taking care of each, honestly:

What turnover or disengagement has cost me:

One thing each person would say they need from me:

One change I can make this month in pay, trust, recognition or flexibility:

THIS WEEK

Ask each person who works with you, "What is one thing that would make your work here better?" Act on at least one answer.
