

What if everyone did this?

Before a decision you are unsure about, ask one question: if every business did what I am about to do, would that be acceptable?

REMEMBER

- ◆ If it only works because others do not do it, it is probably not right.
- ◆ Legal and right are not always the same. Aim for both.
- ◆ A simple test, used every time, protects you better than good intentions.

YOUR TURN

A decision or practice in my business I feel uneasy about:

If every business in my field did this, what would happen?

Would I be comfortable if my customers saw exactly how I do this?

What I will change:

Where I need professional advice before deciding:

THIS WEEK

Take one practice you have wondered about, such as a refund rule, a claim in your marketing or how you use customer information, and put it through the question.

Inspired by Michael Schur, "How Ethics Can Help You Make Better Decisions" (TED). General education, not legal advice.